Tips on writing your abstract

You should consider the following:

- What data to include
- How the data is best presented
- How to introduce your work
- How to link your research to practice
- All presenters must be registered to attend the conference. Abstract acceptance will be subject to registration for the conference. If your abstract is accepted for a presentation, you will need to register by no later than Friday 13th September 2024. Presenters who fail to register by the due date risk having their presentation removed from the program.
- Please remember that submitting an abstract does NOT automatically register you as a conference delegate. Conference registration can be completed online at any time.
- All communications about your abstract will be sent to the email address you submit.
- APP HRF encourages everyone referring to and about people with diabetes to be mindful of the power of language. When writing your abstract and preparing your presentation, please refer to the Diabetes Australia Position Statement "A new language for diabetes: Improving communications with and about people with diabetes".

Please email your submission to app-hrf@ozemail.com.au no later than 5:00pm AEST, Monday 8th July 2024
